

We live in the time of high technologies. And, perhaps, the famous words: "to be the teacher's site or not to be" sounds a bit strange. Of course - "to be"!!! Because you may find your pupils only in the social net after their lessons and you have a great opportunity to communicate informally. But, if we stay in the serious mood, we can use our site as the helper for studying English. We can give a lot of additional information about this or that subject, control the results, communicate with pupils, their parents, colleagues, exchange the useful resources.

Skype, webinars, forums make our life saturated and we can share our experiences, our achievements, achievements of our pupils on pages of our website at any suitable time.

As for me, I'm interested in out-school activities, that's why the site is necessary for me and my students. I put there all the information about Internet competitions I've found and they can choose what kind of competition is more interesting for them.

And we can't keep silence and don't say the disadvantages:

1. We can lose our children in the net.

2. We must spend a lot of time building our website, filling in the information of different kind.

So, to be or not to be the teacher's site is up to every teacher to decide.
