▢ Dialogue A ▢

A: Excuse me, where can I find the nearest underground station?

B: I'm, actually, looking for it, too.

A: Oh, you are a tourist like me.

B: Yes, I arrived this morning, left my luggage at the hotel and went sightseeing. And now I don't know where exactly I am.

A: Look, there's a policemen over there. Let's ask him - he certainly knows the way.

B: Yes, I think he does.

Dialogue B

A: Excuse me, can I get the key to room 209?

B: Yes, certainly, here you are.

A: I'm leaving tomorrow. What's the check-out time here?

B: At noon. You may use our luggage room till 10 pm if you want.

A: Well, yes, thank you.

B: I hope you enjoyed your stay here?

A: Yes. Everything was all right.

Dialogue C □ □ □

A: I'm sorry, but bags as large as yours are not allowed here.

B: Yes, right. But where... You can leave them in the cloak room.

A: Ok. And can I have the plan of the exposition?

B: Here it is. The most interesting exhibits are on the second floor but I recommend you to start with the first floor. That way you'll see all the artifacts in chronological order.

Dialogue D

A: Wow! I like it here. And the armchairs are very comfortable. What's the going to be about by the way?

B: I don't know. A thriller. The commercial for the film says it's about an ancient artifact that went missing and about those who are looking for it.

A: I see. About good guys and bad guys. The artifact will be found by the good guys I bet.

B: Yeah, I think so.

Вы услышите 5 высказываний. Установите соответствие между высказываниями каждого говорящего А-Е и утверждениями, данными в списке 1-6. Используйте каждое утверждение из списка 1-6

только один раз. В задании есть одно лишнее утверждение. Вы услышите запись дважды.

1. The speaker explains why he/she likes cooking.
2. The speaker explains what healthy food is like.
3. The speaker explains why he/she gave up diets.
4. The speaker talks about his/her favourite food.

5. The speaker believes that vegetarian food is healthy.

6. The speaker tells us where he/ she buys food.

Speaker A

Home-made dishes are nice but they may be unhealthy, too. If you are seriously concerned about your health and weight, your food shouldn't contain fat, butter, sugar and potatoes. Fried and spicy food doesn't fit either. Things like sweets, cakes and ice cream should be removed from your table too. At first, it's not easy to live on a diet of stewed vegetables, green salads and cereals, but you'll get used to it.

Speaker B

My mum cooks very well and I usually buy everything she needs for it.

We don't like preserved food from supermarkets. I usually go to little shops that sell fresh milk products and local fruit and vegetables. We like fish but I seldom buy frozen fish fingers. I go to the shop which sells fish from a fish farm. It takes longer, but it's worth it. Mum says that you can't make a good dish from unhealthy and stale ingredients and I agree with her.

Speaker C

I like cooking and try to make the food for my family as diverse as possible. It's not easy as my children do not eat food that contains meat. This makes my life a bit more complicated but I don't try to change their eating habits. They are in perfect health and probably the diet of fruit, vegetables, cereals and nuts does them nothing but good. Actually, I want to become a vegetarian myself. It'll keep me slim and save time.

Speaker D

My mum is a fantastic cook and one day I found out that I couldn't wear my favourite jeans anymore. I decided to go on a diet. On the third day of my fruit and cereals diet I wasn't able to think about anything but food. The delicious smells from the kitchen made me feel as hungry as a wolf. I ran to the kitchen and had roast chicken with fries and olives. I think diets don't work for me.

Speaker E

My granny likes cooking and I'm always glad to help her. When we are in the kitchen together, it reminds me about the good old times when I was a little kid and Granny treated me with her fantastic cakes and pies.

My friends don't believe me when I say that the best way to relax and forget about worries is to go to the kitchen and try a new recipe. It sounds strange but it really works for me.

Jennifer: Hi, Dan! Nice to see you again next-door all the time?

Hi, Jennifer. It's funny - you're our neighbour but I seldom see you. Busy

Jennifer: Now we are ready to start.

I think it's because you are busy ...or travelling somewhere. Your brother has been boasting that you've been to New Zealand recently.

Dan: Oh, gosh! If you want the news to spread – tell my brother... Everyone seems to know about my trip!

Jennifer: And everyone's curious. People don't often go so far for a holiday.

Dan: It wasn't a holiday. We went there to shoot a film about the islands' animals. The Educational Channel is making a series of documentary films about the wildlife.

Jennifer: Wow! Are you saying you are working in TV?

Dan:

Not exactly. A friend of a friend is working there.

He knows that I'm fond of photography. He saw my work and suggested that I could take part in the project as an Assistant Cameraman.

Jennifer: You were lucky, weren't you? How was the flight there?

Dan: Very long. And it took us some time to sort out my problem with New Zealand customs.

Jennifer: Oh, what was wrong? Did you have too much luggage?

Dan:

There was a lot of luggage - cameras and other equipment, but that wasn't the problem.

Jennifer: What was, then?

Dan:

I didn't know that their customs regulations forbid to bring animals, plants, seeds and food into the country.

Jennifer: Did you take a pet with you?

Dan: No, but mum had packed sandwiches, cheese and honey in my bag, just in case I got hungry. I forgot about the package and had to explain the situation to the customs officer. They made me throw it all away.

Jennifer: It's always useful to learn about the country's laws before you go there. And where did you stay? I heard campsites are popular there.

Dan:

That's right, but we stayed in a youth hostel, which is called a backpacker's there. They're much cheaper than a hotel, but much more comfortable than a campsite. The administration was friendly and helpful. When the receptionist, Patrick, found out about my interest in photography, he recommended what photo exhibitions were worth seeing.

Jennifer: Did you visit them?

Dan: Only one. In Auckland. It displayed photos of butterflies. Loads of them -huge, absolutely exotic and fantastically beautiful! Native New Zealand people are called Maori and they know lots of legends about butterflies.

Jennifer: You sound like you want to go there again.

Dan: I certainly would like to. Actually, I dream about going there one day to take photos of native animals, birds and flowers. Then I want to arrange a Wild Life exhibition here, in our city. Our people are so tired of the stressful city life!

Jennifer: It's a great idea I think.
