Dialogue 1

A: What can you have, aunt Jemima?

B: Well, I can't eat bread. Or nuts. And I can't drink tea or coffee. And I can't wear nylon. I can't...

A: We've got some ice-cream in the fridge. Can you eat ice-cream?

B: Ice-cream? Mmm... yes, I can eat that. What flavor is it?

A: Chocolate.

B: Oh, no! I can't.

A: Are you allergic to chocolate, too?

B: No, I'm not. But I don't like it.

Dialogue 2

A: Have you got everything?

B: Yes. It's all here.

A: Passports?

B: Yes.

A: Train tickets?

B: Of course. Don't worry.

A: Have you got seat reservations?

B: Yes. Car four. Seats B-fifteen and B-sixteen.

A: What about the hotel vouchers?

B: They're in my bag.

A: What about money?

B: You've got it.

A: Have I?

B: It's in your bag.

A: Oh, yes. Here it is. Oh, we haven't got anything to read.

B: It's OK. I've got some magazines.

A: What about food? We can get some sandwiches.

B: No, there's a buffet on the train.

Dialogue 3

A: Are you waiting?

B: Yes, I'm looking for a song.

A: What's the title?

B: I don't know. But it's on the radio.

A: I see. Who's the artist?

B: I don't know. It's an old song.

A: Uh, do you know the words?

B: Um, yes... it's uh... «I'm walking... »somewhere....

A: Can you sing it?

B: What? In here?

A: Yes.

B: «I'm walking to New Orleans... ».

A: No, I don't know it.

B: He's American.

A: Ah.

B: He's very good.

A: Mmm. Let me check the computer.

I... I'm... I'm walking... no... wa...walking... yes. Here it is.

«Walking to New Orleans» by Fats Domino.

B: Great! That's it! Have you got it?

A: No, we haven't. But we can order it.

B: OK. How much is it?

A: It's a greatest hits CD. It's fourteenninety-nine.

B: That's fine.

Dialogue 4

A: What time is it?

B: A quarter past nine.

A: What time does our train leave?

B: Nine twenty-seven.

C: The nine twenty-seven service to Disneyland Paris is now boarding at platform two.

A: Ooh. Are there any toilets here?

B: Yes, there are. But you haven't got time. The train's boarding now.

A: We've got twelve minutes...

B: It's OK. There are toilets on the train.

A: Are you sure?

B: Yes, I'm sure.

C: Would all passengers for train number nine-O-seven-four to Disneyland Paris go immediately to platform two.

B: Come on. Let's go.

Dialogue 5

A: Lunch is in the garden.

B: Outside? I can't sit outside.

A: But it's a lovely day.

B: Not for me. I've got hay fever.

A: Oh, OK. We can go into the dining room. This way...

B: There are flowers on the table.

A: Yes, they're roses from our garden.

B: Please take them away. I'm very allergic to roses.

Dialogue 6

A: Welcome to 'My life and memories'. First I want to begin by wishing you a happy birthday.

Elsie: Thank you very much, dear.

A: How long have you been living in London, Elsie?

E: All my life. And I've loved every minute of it.

A: Have you ever been abroad?

E: Well, I used to go on day-trips to Calais. That was when my husband was still alive.

A: I believe you've been married more than once.

E: Yes, I've been married twice and engaged six times.

A: That's interesting! K
