" For every mother"

Take care of your dear mothers

And be a little kinder to them.

When saying " Goodbye"

You never say a lie.

And when you go out of the door,

Do not so much be in a hurry - but wait a little bit,

She's watching near the gate and waiting sore,

When you will wave so gently and express some feelings more.

Oh, mommy, dear, is sighing in a silence,

Through whole night, through silence sight.

We are always kids with romance glance,

Be very careful for all the words despite.

And be a little tender,

Take their warmth as biggest happiness,

Do not be greedy for the care as a lender,

Don't take offence on dearest mommies.

Despite of all the suffering and separation,

Your mothers miss so much,

Without mother's warmest hands -

We cannot live - while she'll us touch.

We take care of them always,

With warmest lips or tender eyes,

Our moms are full of goodness,

Though apart and years by years.

I think that all children should follow your advice to take care of their mothers!

Your poem is really nice and kind!
