Everything for Mum

"My mother is a poem

I'll never be able to write,

though everything I write

is a poem to my mother".

Sharon Doubiago

We all do live in a magic world.

We all have our worth.

But the most essential is not gold

But women gave us birth.

Sometimes we go to their hearts

So, they are crying bitter tears.

On birthday make we sapid tarts

And they forget all torment fears.

Thus, celebrate we Mother's Day

When bring offerings, hug and kiss.

"I worship you", we always say,

"When you are far away, I miss".

"I love you, Mum. You are the best,

The most sincere and allied.

It's true: with you my soul rests.

It's true: you are my leading light.

I'm taking off my hat to you.

I give my thanks for all you've done.

I wish the sky was always blue,

I wish you weren't ever gone".

Let's deify Mummy every day,

Let's make her feeling blest.

In that event her living way

Will be exciting like a fest!

We all do live in a magic world.

We all have our worth.

But the most essential is not gold

But Mum who gave us birth.

The best thing in your poem is the understanding what "the most essential" part in our life is. Sincere and nice words devoted to your mother! Great!
