This WebQuest is designed for students. They will be working on writing letters using correct format as well as learning about the wolf, an endangered animal recently popular in North American news. The students will be writing the letters as if they are the wolves, and then emailing the letters to the Wolf Conservation Center.

Since 1999 the Wolf Conservation Center has worked very hard to help wolves live and grow in the United States. Many people know little or nothing about wolves except for fairy tales such as "Little Red Riding Hood". This is not the impression we want them to have about these magnificent animals. So the Conservation Center wants your help!

You are now a wolf! You will write a letter to humans telling them all about you and your life. The Conservation Center can't wait to receive your letter and use it to help their efforts.
