Совместно с Luke's English Podcast журнал Tea4er.ru объявляет о конкурсном проекте "Ask Luke Thompson".

Читатели нашего журнала в данном разделе форума могут задавать вопросы Люку, после завершения дедлайна Люк выбирает лучшие вопросы и отвечает на них. После получения рейтинга от Люка Томпсона, журнал награждает победителей и лауреатов дипломами.

Конкурс проходит следующим образом:

1) Этап дискуссии. 10 февраля - 10 апреля 2015 года.

Участники сайта задают вопросы автору подкаста.

2) Этап оценивания. 10 апреля - 10 мая 2015 год.

Люк Томпсон и члены редакции оценивают активность участников, ценность их ответов и присуждают 1,2,3 места.

3) Публикация итогов - 20 мая 2015 года. Рассылка дипломов - в течение нескольких недель.

Дискуссия проводится в данной ветке форума.

Для участия в проекте необходимо войти в данную тему под своим логином (авторизация в разделе "Сообщество") и воспользоваться кнопкой Reply (ответить). Если вы не видите кнопку Reply под данным сообщением, значит, вы не авторизировались на сайте.

Сначала нужно представиться в самом первом сообщении, указав ФИО, должность, образовательное учреждение, населенный пункт ПО-АНГЛИЙСКИ.

Люк не понимает по-русски, к сожалению, а вопросы и авторов будет выбирать он сам.

Не следует создавать новые темы. Ваше сообщение появляется на последней странице темы (нумерация доступна на странице). При некорректной регистрации (отсутствие фото, неполные данные) сообщение удаляется без дополнительного уведомления.

Дорогие друзья, мы рады активности участников. Но обращаем ваше внимание на направленность нашего журнала - а именно преподавание. Вопросы Люку "за жизнь и т.д." не совсем вписываются в данную концепцию. Люк Томпсон - преподаватель, блоггер и автор подкастов. Просим помнить именно об этом и, представляя себе примерный ответ автора, взвешивать на внутренних весах "а есть ли польза от данной мысли моим коллегам".

Hey Luke

I'm sure you are aware of this dramatic divide. You are separated by a common language from your cousins across the pond. How alien would you be in New York?

Here in Russia, we read textbook and exam materials from all over the world. But compilers don't warn the text from a certain country. Folks are learning a motley collection of words and phrases from different dialects. Some high school graduates complain they were taught a mixture of British and American accents. I believe EFL textbooks should be written in one certain dialect. Can you please comment on the matter?

Best,
Igor

Hello Luke.
Our school has always taught children to read in English using the traditional phonic method. This year we have got acquainted with the whole-word reading method of teaching small children. There are a lot of debates between the supporters of these two methods. As for me, I try to combine them in different ways, in different classes according to the age group of a class. But the problem is in my lack of experience. What do you think of it? What could you recommend me to make this work more successful? I'm especially interested in teaching 7-8 year-olds. It's their first year of learning English and they have two lessons a week.

I know, you are a teacher, and my question touches upon the system of education in Great Britain. Academic Robert Nigmatulin (the Department of Mechanics and Mathematics, MSU) says that when he was in the UK, he noticed a strange situation (for Russians, at least). Dear Luke,

I've listened to some of your podcasts with great pleasure. Thanks a lot for your talent and enthusiasm. A teacher is a motivator for the students. Explaining new words or some facts, he or she "tries to give vivid examples". "Bring the expression to life. The more vivid and colourful, the better,"- you recommend. But a new way in teaching is autonomous learning. They say, it will develop individual passion for learning. Students will demonstrate responsibility for their own learning, in and out of the school. Luke, do you agree that autonomous learning is a good idea?

Thanks in advance...

Dear Luke,

I had a great pleasure of your LEP (Luke's English Podcast), I really enjoyed it, thanks a lot. Sure, I'll recommend it to my students not only because of English learning profit but because of your personal attitude to life. As I feel, you are an optimist and for you «the cup is always half full».

My question is about your podcast. So many people all over the world listen and watch your very interesting episodes on really vivid themes, but the vast majority of your podcast's visitors are from Russia. How can you explain this fact?

Thanks in advance for your answer.

Dear Luke,

I feel, competitive spirit is typical of you. I think so because of your victories - the Macmillan Dictionary Award for Best Blog (for four times!). My congratulations! Sure, your blog will be the best one this year, too.

My question is about teachers' contests. Do you have any experience in professional contests as a teacher? In Russia there is an annual teachers' contest «A Teacher of a Year». There are some steps in this high-prestige teachers' competition: the best teacher of a school, the best teacher of a city, the best teacher of a region and, finally, the best teacher of Russia.

Are there any teachers' contests in Britain? Are you ready to take part in such a competition?

Thanks in advance for your answer.

Dear Luke,

Some years ago I've read the book « Men Are from Mars, Women Are from Venus» of John Gray which illustrates psychological differences between the genders. Could you share your opinion, if a teacher should pay attention to whom he/she explains the language material – to boys or to girls? Should there be different examples when a teacher explains grammar rules or lexical peculiarities to schoolchildren of different genders? And what about a mixed group?

Sure, it will be very interesting if you devote one of your future podcast's episodes to the theme of psychological differences between the genders.

Thanks in advance for your answer.
